We believe our commercial goals and our social purpose are mutually reinforcing.

Across many industries, a strong sense of fundamental purpose is a characteristic shared by many leading businesses. Pearson’s purpose is to help people make progress in their lives through learning. This purpose informs and shapes our company strategy and is the starting point of our responsibility framework:

PEARSON’S PURPOSE

Our purpose is to help people make progress in their lives through learning.

OUR FOCUS

In 2010, we defined three key issues as the focus of Pearson’s corporate responsibility strategy: literacy, learning outcomes and contributing to competitiveness. These three key issues are where Pearson can make a unique contribution to people’s social and economic wellbeing on a global scale.

RESPONSIBLE BUSINESS PRACTICE

Beyond these three issues, we have a wider agenda of responsible business practice. This covers areas such as nurturing and developing talent and diversity, environmental responsibility and supporting the work of the Pearson Foundation.

OUR VALUES

Our approach to ethics and how we behave is grounded by our culture and values — to be brave, imaginative and decent.

We continue to be recognised in external benchmarks as a leader in corporate responsibility – a testament to the commitment and efforts of our people. We were (for a fourth year) ranked gold in the Dow Jones Sustainability Index.

2013 is a year of considerable change as we merge Penguin with Random House and develop our global education strategy.

Our commitment to helping people make progress in their lives through learning is enduring. However, against that wider backdrop of change, we will ask some key questions about our responsibility framework this year:

› What are the big unmet educational needs which we can help tackle?
› How should we measure and report the educational impact of our products and services?
› Are the three key issues still the right ones for us to focus on?
› What commitments and targets should we set ourselves?

If you have thoughts on these four questions or would like to play a part in helping us find the answers, please let us know and contact our head of corporate responsibility at peter.hughes@pearson.com

Robin Freestone Chief financial officer
(and board member responsible for corporate responsibility)
Overview

We have developed our own responsible business framework to reflect what we do, where we can have the most impact and the expectations that our investors, customers and the people who work at Pearson have of us.

It is unique to Pearson. It is also dynamic – we will update the framework to reflect how we change as a company and the views and priorities of our stakeholders.

To help people make progress in their lives through learning

Three priority issues where we can make the most difference

1. Raising literacy levels
2. Improving learning outcomes
3. Contributing to competitiveness

Responsible business practice

Our values

BRAVE, IMAGINATIVE, DECENT
The economic and social cost of illiteracy is immense – affecting as many as two billion people – it may be as high as one trillion US dollars per year. Illiteracy is a global challenge affecting both developed and emerging countries. For example, in the UK, 22% of the population are deemed functionally illiterate, struggling with basic tasks, such as applying for a job by e-mail or reading their child’s school report. The cost to the UK alone is estimated at £8bn a year.

Our approach

Raising literacy levels is one of our three focus areas because:

› Good reading skills are the basic cornerstone essential for people to learn.
› All our businesses depend on the premise that people can read and enjoy doing so.
› Our mix of businesses means that we can make a unique contribution to tackling illiteracy.

We play a part in three main ways:

› Our reading programmes – both print and digital – are found in classrooms the world over.
› For many, the first story that they read or that is read aloud to them will be a Penguin title.
› We partner with others to run projects and campaigns to give books and to inspire reading.

Reading in the classroom

We have a full range of reading programmes designed to help students learn to read. Whether print or online, whole school or for students who need a little extra help, they all share a commitment to improving the reading standards of individual learners.

CASE STUDY

iLit (inspire Literacy)

iLit is the first reading programme built and delivered completely on the iPad. Launched in the United States, it targets readers aged 9 to 16 and supports, rewards and instructs based around the needs of the individual reader. iLit is currently available for readers aged 14 to 16. For more information about iLit and the research evidence that underpins it, visit: www.redefiningliteracy.com

Reading in the home

Enthusiastic readers are inspired by great stories. Our Penguin books for children – Puffin, Frederick Warne and Ladybird books – all provide plenty of options.

In this digital age, how we read and write may change radically, but the ability to do so is more important than ever. We believe in offering stories that are engaging and fun, regardless of format, for parents and their children to read at home or on the move.
Partnering with others to encourage reading

Tackling illiteracy demands that we work together in an open and collaborative way. We have focused on building partnerships that extend access to books and opportunities for shared reading. Highlights include:

› We gave our eight millionth book under our Booktime programme.

› We Give Books, the digital reading challenge run by the Pearson Foundation, surpassed 1.5 million books donated to literacy charities around the world as chosen by online readers.

› We gave our one millionth book to Book Aid, the charity that supports the development of libraries in schools and communities in Sub-Saharan Africa. We were the largest book donor to Book Aid in 2012.

CASE STUDY

Ladybird: I’m ready for phonics app

Giving a child a reading head start before they start school helps build confident readers. New apps such as Ladybird’s ‘I’m Ready for Phonics!’ gives parents new ways to help prepare a child for synthetic phonics learning at school.

CASE STUDY

Booktime

Our Booktime programme run in partnership with charity Booktrust sees every child starting school in England and Wales receive a book pack containing two free books to take home and keep. Now in its seventh year, we exceeded eight million books donated this year. Pearson received the 2012 Lord Mayor’s Dragon Award in the education category alongside Booktrust for the Booktime programme.

Our responsibility as a company is to play our full part in informing, shaping and making learning effective for people of all ages, abilities and locations. This focus on learning outcomes is a critical part of our responsibility vision.

In the past, there were limitations on the extent to which a textbook publisher selling products to education institutions could measure their impact on learning outcomes.

Our strategy is to become an education technology and solutions provider with global reach. As the strategy gathers pace, so do the opportunities to help understand what works best to help students succeed. We recognise that as we become more directly involved in the process of learning, we are more accountable for outcomes.

We have:

› Conducted nearly 50 reviews in 2012 to assess and improve learning outcomes and trained over 100 people in the process.
› Run a series of events reaching over 1,200 people and presented on our approach at the company senior strategy conference and to the next generation of our leaders.

We will:

› Conduct at least 100 additional reviews to assess the learning outcomes from our programmes and services.
› Make it a precondition of any new investment of US$3m or more that it is assessed for its impact on learning.
› Make a series of commitments around how we will deepen and accelerate our approach to assessing learning outcomes.

Pearson Affordable Learning Fund

A global challenge is how we can all ensure that every child can benefit from learning, but with over 60 million children not in school, there is a need for urgent innovation. We believe that low-cost private education is part of the answer and that there is a need to encourage new ideas, models and ways of working.

So, we have launched the Pearson Affordable Learning Fund whose purpose is to make minority equity investments in for-profit companies that help meet a burgeoning demand for affordable education services in Africa, Asia and Latin America. The fund launched in July 2012 with $15m of initial Pearson capital, and made its first investment in a chain of private schools in Ghana. See more at: www.affordable-learning.com

The connection between education and long-term economic growth is well-documented and increasingly well understood.

Helping individuals get ready for work
Getting a job depends on having relevant skills. As many countries continue to wrestle with the economic, social and personal cost of unemployment, particularly for the young, it is even more important that we help people develop the skills they need for work.

Securing a professional or vocational qualification is an important factor in getting a job. We create and administer millions of admissions, tests, certifications, vocational assessments and general qualifications including:
› BTEC, the vocational qualification recognised by schools, colleges, universities, employers and professional bodies across the United Kingdom and in over 100 countries worldwide.
› The Graduate Management Admission Test (GMAT), the leading test for entrance to business schools and management programmes worldwide.
› NCLEX Nursing examination, required to obtain a licence necessary to apply for work as a nurse in the United States.

We have:
› Mapped current research activity and laid the foundation to launch our online research portal.
› Convened a Pearson Executive Research Council bringing together the research professionals within Pearson.
› Launched two publications with international acclaim – The Learning Curve and Oceans of Innovation: www.pearson.com/oceans

We will:
› Invest in research to help advance education as well as inform the products and services we develop.
› Partner with a range of organisations to conduct educational research and promote the dissemination of knowledge.
› Promote open discussion through participating in and convening conferences and events.
› Make research outcomes publicly available via: www.pearson.com/research

CASE STUDY

Next Generation BTECs
Pearson launched Next Generation BTECs, which meet new regulator and Department for Education criteria to make BTEC the best represented vocational qualification on the new accountability framework for schools in England.

Sharing knowledge and investing in research
Few companies participate in education on a global scale so we have a responsibility to support educational improvement and to actively share our experience on models that work and those that do not.

CASE STUDY

The Learning Curve
This year, we supported the Economist Intelligence Unit (EIU) in the development of The Learning Curve. The initiative brought together in one place a wide range of data sets designed to enable researchers and policymakers to correlate education outcomes with wider social and economic impact more easily than ever before. As international benchmarking of education systems has become ever more prevalent, the Learning Curve has the potential to add to our understanding of what successful education systems look like and how success can be achieved: thelearningcurve.pearson.com
Contributing to debate
We are committed to playing an active role in helping shape and inform the global debate around education and learning policy.

With the 2015 deadline for achieving the Millennium Development Goals and Education for All Goals fast approaching, it is certainly time to take stock on the role that education has played and should play for the future. We have joined with a range of organisations as an active member of the Global Compact on Learning. Ways we are helping include contributing to developing and agreeing common metrics to measure the success of the Global Compact:
www.brookings.edu/learningmetrics

We are active participants in the Global Partnership for Education, having been one of the first companies to join the initiative and make a pledge at its replenishment conference. GPE brings together over 50 developing countries, donor governments, international organisations, the private sector, teachers, and civil society/NGO groups to support developing countries with their education sector plans through financial assistance and technical expertise:
www.globalpartnership.org

We also believe that the wider private sector has an important contribution to make in developing education and learning policy. We supported and helped fund in 2012 the Global Business Coalition for Education. The aim is to help focus the wider business community on helping tackle the challenges faced by developing countries to promote learning:

Doing informed business
The FT Group is the leading provider of essential information, insight and analysis to the global business and opinion-forming community. Access to trusted and informed information is the basis on which businesses make effective decisions. The FT plays a unique global role in providing that information.
Under the current responsible business framework at Pearson, we focus on the three areas where we believe we have a unique opportunity to make a positive impact – literacy, learning outcomes and competitiveness.

In addition, we adopt a broad and holistic definition of ‘responsible business’ that captures a series of priorities that are common across many industries and individual companies.

Some of these issues are central to our business success; others may be small based on our commercial operations but have the potential to significantly impact our reputation. As we operate in over 70 countries, the relative significance of issues and therefore our responsible business strategy can vary based on varying operational, political and regulatory environments as well as customer expectations.

A report on how we manage and govern responsible business along with issues such as tax and lobbying can be found in downloads.

To find out more about our world leading businesses and our financial performance, please visit our Annual Report.
We see two big environmental challenges facing the planet. The first is climate change and the second is resource use.

Climate change impacts such as extreme weather patterns and water scarcity affect people everywhere, with developing countries the most vulnerable. We operate in more than 70 countries and we are seeing a growing global recognition of the effects of climate change whether from our investors or by policymakers and how this is starting to change the business landscape. New regulations are emerging – as are the expectations of the people who work at Pearson and who buy our products and services.

The second challenge is lack of resources. A growing population means more people and more competition for food, water, energy and natural resources. WWF has estimated that on current projections, humanity will need at least two planets’ worth of natural resources by 2050. All countries have legitimate aspirations to grow and provide opportunity, but that they do so in a sustainable fashion, should be of deep concern to us all.

In the context of this bigger picture, a challenge for educators is how to be effective in helping people to learn to think critically and to find solutions to difficult problems as well as helping foster the leadership necessary to apply this knowledge to drive change. Pearson, as the world’s largest learning company, has a role to play in this change not least as the quality of education outcomes is crucial to equip people with the necessary skills.

However, we cannot forget our own environmental footprint. Although it is relatively small compared to that of many industries, reducing our impact is both good for the planet and can often also deliver business benefits. Our two environmental priority issues are climate change and resource use. Both reflect our concern for good environmental stewardship which is shared by many of our stakeholders.

Our full environmental report is available in downloads.
Our footprint increased in 2012. This was as a result of acquisitions.

Our second focus area is forests. As a purchaser of paper and newsprint for our books, magazines and newspapers, security and sustainability of supply are very important to us. We have focused on actively encouraging responsible forest management and being more efficient in how we use paper. Some 2012 environmental highlights were:

- The Financial Times has reduced the volume of newsprint and magazine papers it uses by over 50% in five years. A key initiative has been to reduce the base weight of the papers used.
- Pearson together with three other North American publishers has entered into a partnership with the Sustainable Forestry Initiative® to help spur the growth of certification to preserve and protect forests. SFI Forest Partners aims to certify two million hectares of forests to the SFI 2010–2014 Standard across the United States and Canada and a further four million hectares by the end of 2017.
- Over 50 million Penguin books published in 2012 carried the FSC logo.

Renewable energy generation at our facilities

Our first renewable electricity project went live in December 2009. Over its lifetime the new solar panels on our building at Old Tappan in New Jersey is expected to produce electricity equivalent to 4,325 metric tonnes of CO₂e. To date, the Old Tappan solar panel project is generating 9% more than projected. We now have 2.3MW in on-site renewable energy assets (solar panels and wind) at our facilities.

“As only the second organisation ever to achieve global certification to the Carbon Trust Standard – by no means an easy task – Pearson is demonstrating real leadership in how to measure, manage and reduce carbon emissions year on year.”

We have focused on actively encouraging responsible forest management and being more efficient in how we use paper. Some 2012 environmental highlights were:

To use FSC papers where we can and our own grading system

We track and report the Forest Stewardship Council (FSC) volume we purchase and the grading system we use to meet our requirement to purchase from known, responsible sources.

To be ever more efficient in how we use paper as the most significant natural resource for us

1.2.2 SUPPLY CHAIN MANAGEMENT

Pearson purchases goods and services valued at over £2bn each year. This total includes our investment in research and development such as our advances to authors and the development of new digital products and services.

Pearson was a founder signatory to the UN Global Compact in 2000. We were clear from the outset that we would use our influence with our suppliers to improve standards for their employees and the communities in which they operate. So, in 2001, we made a series of commitments that covered labour standards and human rights as well as environmental responsibility, and extended these to cover our supply chain.

Our people

Our company purpose is to help people make progress in their lives through learning – or to be ‘always learning’. The use of ‘people’ in describing our purpose is deliberate in that this applies as much to the people that work at Pearson as it does to the millions of people who benefit from our products and services.

Pearson has always been a business built on ideas and as such relies on the minds and creativity of our people.

Last year, we set out that Pearson was a business in transition. 2012 saw a continuation of that trend:

- Digital and services business now account for 50% of revenue – up from 31% in 2007;
- Emerging markets. Revenue from our businesses in Latin America, China, India, Africa and the Middle East has tripled to $1.2bn in the last five years. 20% of our employees are now located in these markets in readiness for further growth;
- Technology and services in education. We are changing from being a textbook publisher to a broad-based supplier of education technology and services as well as curriculum materials.

These are significant changes and have long shaped how we think about the structure of our business and the types of people we employ.

These trends will see a significant acceleration in 2013. As part of the vision for the company, Pearson is set to radically shift the pace of our focus on digital and services businesses with a special emphasis on emerging markets.

As part of this shift, we will group markets as:

- North America, by some distance our biggest market today and for the foreseeable future.
- Growth, including China, India, Brazil and South Africa, which are new centres of gravity of that once-in-a-generation education opportunity which can fuel Pearson’s growth.
- Core, including the UK, Australia and Italy, where we are already strong and intend to stay that way.

Also part of our transformation is the combination of our consumer publishing business Penguin with Random House which we expect to complete during 2013. We believe that bringing together these two businesses is the best strategy to respond to the rapidly changing consumer book industry.

Our approach

The seven priority people issues for us from a corporate responsibility perspective are:

- People development. Making sure that we offer the right development opportunities for all our people.
- Understanding the workforce of the future. As the shape of the business changes, so do our future skills needs. This means that some functions and roles which we currently have will no longer be needed, while new jobs and structures will emerge which we may not yet have considered.
- Data and analytics. As we grow organically and by acquisition, we need to be able to understand how we are changing both through hard data and by reviewing what people tell us about how we are doing.
- Collaboration and engagement. Having an efficient way for our people to communicate is important to our business success by helping us to work differently and more efficiently.
- Diversity and inclusion. As we internationalise and grow, so do the people that work for us.
- Wellbeing. We care deeply about the wellbeing of all employees and their families and we look to create opportunities for everyone to take steps toward healthier living.
- Health and safety. A duty we share with all organisations is to offer a safe and healthy workplace for the people that work for us.

These continue to be our priorities as our global education strategy develops.

CASE STUDY

Pearson Academy for launch in 2013

Pearson Academy is a global community of existing learning groups and alignment of people-related resources and activities across the company. It will deliver learning and performance management to everyone at Pearson via a single, engaging platform. For the first time, learning and online performance management will be available to anyone at Pearson, anywhere, on any device – and we’ll be able to track learning and performance activity and measure it. Pearson Academy will help us develop better prepared and better skilled people for the future and put learning and development at the core of people’s working experience.
1.2.4 CUSTOMERS

We continue to work hard to earn the trust of the people who buy and use our products and services. Each of our businesses has a precious reputation to defend – Penguin for the quality of its publishing and consistent record of innovation and fearlessness; the FT for its rigorously investigated, unbiased and responsible journalism; and our education businesses for the efficacy and demonstrable positive outcomes of their learning solutions. Some important areas for us are:

› Freedom of expression.
› Editorial independence and integrity at the FT.
› Appropriateness and accessibility of content.
› Product safety.

✔ Target achieved

△ Target ongoing
Our company purpose is to help people of all ages to make progress in their lives through learning. This is both a social purpose and our core business. Our commercial success provides the investment capacity for us to continue to innovate and expand into new geographic markets and new kinds of learning. Not-for-profit partners can help us extend our reach and impact in ways that have a real impact on learning – especially for the most disadvantaged – and are complementary to our business objectives. We also believe that our stakeholders expect and value our efforts to work in partnership with charitable organisations.

We therefore partner and fund a number of charitable organisations with the Pearson Foundation being the largest of these. In 2012 our worldwide charitable giving was £11.4m or 1.2% of pre-tax profits.

Community spend

Our worldwide charitable giving is divided as follows:

The Pearson Foundation plays an important role in furthering our charitable objectives.

By establishing the Pearson Foundation as an independent charity, we sent a clear message to partners that we are serious about our desire to make a sustained investment and intervention in improving learning. The Pearson Foundation sets out its priorities for partnership with other charities as well as provides a means to raise additional funds for charitable purposes from other organisations.

The Pearson Foundation plays an important role for Pearson. It is our preferred charity partner and has a remit within Pearson to look to unlock company assets – cash, products and services and employee time – for charitable purposes, particularly to benefit organisations and individuals who would not otherwise be able to access them.

We are proud of what the Pearson Foundation has achieved and will continue to support its mission to innovate around new models for learning. It plays an invaluable role to explore, demonstrate, and inform the future shape of private and public sector provision.

CASE STUDY

The Pearson Foundation Million Voice Project

My Voice™ is an innovative way to engage all members of the school community in a student-centred dialogue about their school’s culture. Through asking students, staff, and parents about their school, analysing their responses, and acting on them, My Voice aims to help students reach their fullest potential. The Pearson Foundation brings together the perceptions of young people to provide educators with detailed student data that can be used to improve teaching and learning. The Pearson Foundation provides participating schools, school districts, and organisations worldwide with access to the My Voice™ Aspirations Survey for grades 6 through 12 (US) and years 7 through 13 (UK), as well as resources including implementation support, school-level reporting, and the tools necessary to interpret the report data. http://myvoice.pearsonfoundation.org/
Pearson people: giving time and money

Each business group has its own community budget which is often used to match the fundraising of our people, to support local charities and make donations to non-profit groups involved in learning and literacy. Alongside charitable donations and sponsorship, Pearson businesses partner with NGOs to highlight particular local causes or international concerns.

We support our people in their own community involvement, matching their fundraising and providing volunteering opportunities in work time.

Pearson Community Awards

We celebrate our Pearson volunteers by inviting anyone in the company to apply for the annual Pearson Community Awards, with a $2,000 prize for up to seven recipients to donate on Pearson’s behalf to their charity of choice, in addition to a $500 ‘thank you’ to the volunteer.

Target achieved
Target ongoing
The bedrock of corporate responsibility at Pearson is our company culture. We have a clear and simple set of values – in everything we do, we aspire to be brave, imaginative and decent.

These values are embedded in our Code of conduct which covers, among other things, the environment, employees, individual conduct, community and society.

Once a year, everyone working for Pearson gets a copy of our Code of conduct, either electronically or on paper. We ask them to read it, to confirm to the Pearson CEO that they have read it and understood it, and in doing so, to provide a check that the company complies with it. The Code forms part of induction and an online training module is available. If anyone has concerns, they can raise them with a line manager or through a free, confidential telephone line/website.

An ethics website provides easy access to our Code of conduct in local languages and a secure way for people to raise and track issues of potential concern.

Global compact

During 2000, Pearson, along with other companies, signed a ‘global compact’ at the United Nations which sets out a series of principles on labour standards, human rights, the environment and combating corruption. In 2001 we put in place a series of commitments relating to the principles supported by ways to monitor our performance.

Each year, we submit a report on our progress to the United Nations describing how our guidelines reflect the UN principles and show the progress made against our key commitments.

Measuring progress

In this section, we share trend data drawn from areas of social and environmental impact that stakeholders ask us about along with information on awards received in 2012 and our broad corporate plans to progress the corporate responsibility agenda at Pearson.
Social reporting measures

2012 is our baseline year for reporting people data. For the US and UK, the metrics we report are:
